

COLONSAY 1973

SITE

The site of our camp will be that used by the society on the five previous occasions that we have visited the island. It is situated on the west coast of Colonsay, at a bay called 'tobar fuar'. The 1967 report gives a very appealing picture,

"The tents were pitched only a couple of yards from the large beach at the end of a splendid bay. And when the sun set, the rocks in the mouth of the bay became as shadows in a silver sea."

CAMP

In camp you will be sleeping in sections in 5 man Icelandic tents, and the officers will all be herded into a tent of their own. We will also have two large marquees which will act as dining room and project room for the expedition.

SUGGESTED KIT LIST

Below is a list of items recommended for an expedition. Remember above all that it can be very wet and cold in the Hebrides even in the summertime. Plenty of dry clothes are important.

Boots (corps or climbing)	2 jerseys
Gym shoes	Anorak (with hood)
3 pairs of thick socks	Pyjamas
3 pairs of pants	Bathing trunks
shorts	Large towels
2 pairs of old long trousers	Waterproof cape and hat
vest	Hankies
3 shirts	Woollen gloves
Scarf	Toothbrush and toothpaste
Comb	Soap (might not be a bad idea)
Sleeping bag + lilo	Writing materials and stamps.

The following articles are also suggested; notebook, diary, pencils, "books, camera, compass, fishing tackle, telescope or binoculars, cards, musical instruments, personal first aid kit, torch, mending gear (needle thread etc.) penknife, frame rucksack, sense of humour. You would also find any small tents, stoves, cooking dixies etc. that you possess very useful for any bivouacs that you may go on.

All articles should be clearly marked. A stout pair of boots are essential and if they are new, it is a very good idea to break them in before the expedition. I would also remind you the transistor radios are forbidden on SHS expeditions.
